Raine Square

Chicken Rice Corner brings Singapore's signature dish and other delectable Asian delights to Perth. Having designed the first location, the client was still looking for further efficiencies and cost savings to the operation of the food tenancy. Expecting the same amount of food output, the kitchen needed to perform. In line with other vendors in the food court, this shopfront still needed to draw attention of patrons looking for a good meal.

The logo, colourful and bold, sits proudly on the Asian inspired wall. Modern perforated panels wrap up the walls and over the ceiling. Colourful metal chickens playfully adorn the face of the front counter as they "march" up the side of the rice paper wall all the way to the kitchen. Warm timbers clad the back wall and service counter to connect back to the rice paper timber framed wall. Textural and detailed, these elements combine to create a unique and catchy appeal.

With a highly functional and efficient kitchen space, the budget was met in this design. By trading off inefficient equipment with better flow, the client was able to maximize on the budget set out.
